My Dad

My dad is a lovely and kind person. He often knows what I have on my mind. He is someone who listens, suggests, and defends. My Dad can be one of my very best friends. He is proud of my triumphs, but when things go wrong, he can be patient and helpful and strong. There is always a place for him deep in my heart

My Dad is Taufik Sutrisno, he is a handsome man with 173 cm in height. He has curly hair, a sharp nose, and big eyes. He has brown skin and a muscular body. If you see him, then you will think that my Dad has a descendant of Arabic though his body and face are similar to the Arabs.

My Dad is a very neat and clean. He gets up at dawn deleted; goes to the mosque to pray together; reads the Qur'an; then takes a shower. However, before taking a bath, he always waters flowers and cleans the front yard and backyard. My Dad works in a large corporation and it's not too far from my home. During 10 years working in that company, I think he never comes late because he is very disciplined. He goes at 06:30 AM and fifteen minutes later he arrives at his office. My Dad once said that he would never regret to come earlier than others and then he is alone in the office. Meanwhile, he regrets when he comes too late and starts all work in a hurry. In short, my Dad is my hero and superstar.

One of the most well-known landmarks in the world, the Statue of Liberty, is synonymous with freedom and liberty. Situated in New York Harbor on Liberty Island, the statue is situated just two miles from the tip of Manhattan and just 2,000 feet from Jersey City, N.J. However, while you may be well-versed in some of the main facts about the looming Lady Liberty, there are some interesting tidbits about the statue's physical features that you might not know.

The Statue of Liberty depicts a tall female form with a torch in one hand and a tablet in the other. The tablet has a date on it--JULY IV MDCCLXXVI---which depicts the day of America's independence from England. She has chains on her feet and there are seven spikes in the crown of the statue, which stand for the seven continents or seven seas of the world.

She measures in at 305 feet from the top of the torch all the way to the ground; this measurement considers the foundation on which the statue stands as well as her pedestal. The statue alone measures at 151 feet. Moreover, according to The Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation Inc., the face of the statue is more than eight feet in height. The weight of the statue overall is 225 tons, and her waistline is 35 feet in diameter.

A restoration of the statue was completed in 1986. During the process, the torch of the Statue of Liberty was covered in 24 karat gold. It was also rebuilt during this process, with copper that had already been aged to match the existing hue of the rest of the statue. An elevator was also installed at this time, though visitors still have the option of climbing the 354 steps to the crown.

21. What is the text about ?
- A. The most famous landmark.
 - B. The New York Harbour.
 - C. The Statue of Liberty.
 - D. The Jersey City.
22. What can you see in the tablet held by one hand of the statue ?
- A. The month of English Independence Day from USA.
 - B. The figure behind the American Independence.
 - C. The day of American freedom from England.
 - D. The proclaimer of American independence.
23. What will readers probably do after reading the text ?
- A. Seeking for more information related to the iconic object.
 - B. Using knowledge they have to promote the object.
 - C. Arranging a special tour to visit the landmarks.
 - D. Visiting the popular object with their family.
24. "It was also rebuilt during this process, ... " (paragraph four)
- The underlined word refers to
- A. the restoration
 - B. the statue
 - C. the torch
 - D. the gold

YouTube is an excellent way to get noticed on the internet and, in some cases, you can even use it to earn a living. To make a YouTube channel, you'll need to set up the channel using a Google account and add channel art, a channel description, and a channel name. After creating your YouTube channel, develop eye-catching video content, and actively maintain and promote your channel to generate popularity.

1. Choose a good name for your channel. Think of a name not many people will use, but will easily remember.
2. Remember to make a cool username and a catchy channel name. You don't want it to be like any other channel so be creative and make a totally new one that nobody but yourself could think of.
3. Go to YouTube and log in with your Google account. Once you are logged in, you will see your name or username at the top of the left menu. Click this to access your user page.
4. Add a profile picture. It's a necessary piece of your YouTube channel. Make sure it has something to do with your channel name to ensure it's not confused with someone else's that looks similar.
5. Add channel art. This is an image that is seen at the top of your channel page. YouTube will show examples of how the image will be displayed on the website, a TV, or a mobile device.
6. Describe your channel. Add a brief description for your channel to let the viewer know what kind of content to expect. To adjust the channel description, click the About tab in the main channel window. From there click the "+ Channel description" button.

25. After reading the text, the readers are expected to
- A. be able to follow the steps in making YouTube channel
 - B. get a practical knowledge about the benefit of YouTube channel
 - C. know how to create an eye-catching channel to earn a living
 - D. be able to avoid the negative effect of using YouTube channel
26. What do readers do in the fifth step?
- A. Choose an image to be added as a profile picture.
 - B. Log in to YouTube with their Google account.
 - C. Add an image that functions as a channel art.
 - D. Write a brief description to the channel.
27. What should we do after creating our username?
- A. Go to YouTube and log in with Google account.
 - B. Add a profile picture at the top of the channel.
 - C. Make a channel art by choosing an image.
 - D. Make a description related to the content.
28. "You don't want it to be like any other channel ... " (step 2)
- The underlined word refers to
- A. user
 - B. name
 - C. content
 - D. account

Fog or mist is cloud of condensed water vapor in the form of water droplets or ice crystals, suspended in the atmosphere just over the surface of the earth. In cities and industrial areas, fog often combines with smoke to produce the mixture called smog.

Meteorologically, fog can be classified into four general types according to the mechanism by which it is formed: advection, radiation, upslope, and precipitation.

Advection fog is formed whenever a current of relatively warm, moist air passes over a colder body of land or water. Fog of this type is frequent in the winter when snow is on the ground. It is also common over the ocean, as in the North Atlantic when winds blow across the warm Gulf Stream and reach the cold Labrador Current.

Radiation fog, formed only over land, is caused by the cooling of the earth by radiation. At night, radiation lowers water temperature comparatively slowly, but land cools rapidly, becoming cooler than the air above it; consequently, a fog is formed. Such fog is seldom thick and usually "burns off" in the morning.

Upslope fog is formed when air is evenly cooled by its rising and expanding, as when a wind flows up a mountain slope.

Precipitation fog may form during a snowstorm or rainstorm, if the snow or rain passes through a layer of air that is cooler than the precipitation. Fog of this kind frequently occurs during the passage of warm fronts and cold fronts, when the surface air is markedly different in temperature from the upper air.

29. Why is the text written?
- A. To avoid the disadvantages of fogs in general.
 - B. To remind people of the danger of certain fogs.
 - C. To make people know what fog is and how it happens.
 - D. To make people aware of the possible impacts of fogs.

30. What does the text above describe?
- A. The mixture of fog and smoke in cities.
 - B. The mechanism how fog is formed.
 - C. How meteorologists categorize fog.
 - D. What fog is and its classification.
31. Which fact is in line with the fact that there are four general types of fog?
- A. Upslope fog is formed due to temperature difference.
 - B. Precipitation fog occurs during snowy seasons.
 - C. Radiation fog is always thick in the morning.
 - D. Advection fog often happens in winter.

The Pyralis firefly (also known as the lightning bug) is a common firefly in North America. This partly nocturnal, luminescent beetle is the most common firefly in the USA.

At night, the very end (the last abdominal segment) of the firefly glows a bright yellow-green color. The firefly can control this glowing effect. The brightness of a single firefly is 1/40 of a candle. Fireflies use their glow to attract other fireflies. Males flash about every five seconds; females flash about every two seconds. This firefly is harvested by the biochemical industry for the organic compounds luciferin (which is the chemical the firefly uses for its bioluminescence).

This flying insect is about 0.75 inch (2 cm) long. It is mostly black, with two red spots on the head cover; the wing covers and head covers are lined in yellow. Like all insects, it has a hard exoskeleton, six jointed legs, two antennae, compound eyes, and a body divided into three parts (the head, thorax, and abdomen).

Both the adults and the larvae are carnivores. They eat other insects (including other fireflies), insect larvae, and snails.

Many thousands of years ago, a man and his wife lived in the Philippines, they were called Angngalo and Angngarab.

One morning, they went to gather some shellfish. Inside one, they found a pearl. It was an unusual yellow colour and very large.

Angngalo gave it to Angngarab. "Oh!" she said, "I can find many more pearls than you!"

Soon they were quarrelling and shouting at each other. They ran along the seashore looking for shellfish. Before, they had a big pile in front of them. They pulled the shells open and looked in them for pearls.

"I've got more pearls than you!" shouted Angngalo.

"No, you haven't!" answered Angngarab. "Anyway, my pearls are bigger than yours!"

Soon, they were fighting. They threw the shells and pearls at each other. (That is why there are so many shells and pearls in the Philippines) They rolled on the ground and stamped their feet. There was a loud "Boom!" and "Crack!". The mountains and hills began to split. The water in the rivers and lakes flooded the land.

They still continued fighting. Suddenly, there was a great storm, with thunder lightning. The land broke into several parts. Luzon was in the north, the Visayan Islands were in the middle, and Mindanao in the south.

Jack Ma, a Chinese business magnate, philanthropist, internet and technology entrepreneur, founded and became executive chairman of Alibaba Group, a conglomerate of Internet based, technology and AI businesses.

Ma started to study English at a young age and practiced English daily by conversing with English-speakers at Hangzhou international hotel, a 70 min bike ride from his home. He would give them tours around the city for free to improve his English for nine years. Later in his youth, Ma struggled attending college. After that, Ma attended Hangzhou Teacher's Institute (currently known as Hangzhou Normal University) and graduated in 1988 with a B.A. in English. After graduation, he became a lecturer of English and International Trade at Hangzhou Dianzi University.

Jack Ma was one of the first few individuals who saw Internet as a business opportunity even at a time when the rest of the world didn't believe in his thoughts. In the mid 1990's Jack got to know about the existence of the internet and began seeing this new trend in technology as a great business opportunity. Ma even frequently visited the United States in 1995 to learn more about the internet. One of his friends even showed him how to connect to a website. The same year, he even raised a fund of $20000 to start his own firm with an intention of solely focusing on the internet. The purpose of the company was to create websites for their clients. Although this kind of business was relatively new, Jack managed to earn a whopping $800000 in a matter of just 3 years.

His success in the field of internet, led to Jack's appointment as the head of a firm governed by the agency 'China International Electronic Commerce Center', in 1998. He continued working in this IT-based firm for the next one year. After stepping down from his responsibilities in 1999, Jack founded a company named 'Alibaba' along with many other friends. The intention was to create a website which is more like a one stop shop for business to business transactions. The company's business soon expanded to around 240 different nations. He also founded many firms such as 'Taobao', 'Lynx' and 'Ali Mama'. 'Taobao' also grabbed the attention of another famous internet shark, 'Yahoo'. The firm invested $1 Billion in Jack's venture.
